HELGA MATZKE EUROPEAN SILVER

THE SPLENDOR OF THE "ÉPOQUE IMPÉRIALE" TWO SILVER ENTRÉE DISHES AND COVER BY ODIOT AND BIENNAIS

Object number :

Two cloche

Paris: Paris: 1798 -1809 see Jaques Helft, French Master Silversmith, page 331 Maker: Jean Baptiste Claude Odiot, see Rosenberg No.6768 Cloche: diam. 27,5 cm, Weight: 1.350 gr each

two dishes

Paris 1798-1809 Master: Martin-Guillaume Biennais, see Rosenberg No. 6770 Dishes: diam. 30 cm ; 1753.6 gr

HELGA MATZKE KG - Wörnbrunnerstrasse 11 - 82031 Grünwald - Deutschland

HELGA MATZKE EUROPEAN SILVER

Pictures

Detailed Description

The entre dish hood

made by Jean Baptiste Claude Odiot, stands on a smooth foot which is decorated at top and bottom by a tongue frieze.

A band of vine leaves and grapes is attached to the center of the hood, which arches over the rim.

The artistically designed knob begins with a surrounding tongue frieze over which the knob tapers inwards. The knob closes off as a round plate which is decorated on the outside with a frieze of flowers and ribbons. In the middle a woman's head framed with foliage and grapes.

Owner's medaillon inside on the lower edge.

The two dishes

, masterfully crafted by Martin-Guillaume Biennais

bear a palmette frieze on the outer edge and deepen in steps towards the inside. The outer edge of the top-side is decorated with the coat of arms of the Balguerie family.

Jean Baptiste Claude Odiot, born in 1763, died 1850 came from a family of silversmiths whose origins date back to the beginning of the seventeenth century. His grandfather, J-B Gaspard Odiot had become a master craftsman in 1720, and his father, Pierre Odiot practiced between 1756 and 1785, when J.B.Claude Odiot succeeded him

Their business was located at 270 rue Saint Honore at the corner of the rue de l'Echelle.

Jean-Baptiste Claude Odiot was influenced by the return of the classical Greek and Egyptian motifs as expressed in the Directoire and Empire styles. Court commissions help further the reputation of Maison Odiot, and the firm provided vermeil services to courts across Europe.

In 1802 he was awarded a gold medal in the third Exposition de l'Industrie in Paris. He executed a traveling service (c. 1795–1809) for Napoleon and a large table service (1798–1809; Munich, Residenz) for Maximilian I Joseph of Bavaria (1756–1825). Odiot's most complex work was a set of dressing-table furniture made for Empress Marie Louise in 1810 (destr. 1832)

Martin-Guillaume Biennais, born on April 29, 1764 near La Cochère, Orne department; died on March 27, 1843 in Paris was one of the most important Parisian gold and silversmiths, who had a shop in the rue Saint-Honoré since 1789. Napoleon Bonaparte appointed him royal goldsmith after his coronation.

HELGA MATZKE EUROPEAN SILVER